

Melissa Hagemann

Melissa Hagemann is the Program Manager of the Open Access Initiative within the Information Program of the Open Society Institute (OSI)/Soros foundations. Since convening the meeting in December 2001 which led to the development of the Budapest Open Access Initiative, OSI has been active within the open access movement.

In addition, Melissa is working with eIFL (electronic Information for Libraries) to spread the benefits of open access among eIFL's members in 55 developing and transition countries. Melissa has held several positions within OSI over the past ten years. She managed OSI's Regional Library Program from 1995-1997 based in Budapest as well as the Science Journals Donation Program from 1998-2001. Prior to joining OSI, she worked in the European Parliament in Brussels.

Melissa holds a Masters degree in International History and Diplomacy from the London School of Economics, and a Bachelors of Arts degree from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Open Society Institute

The Open Society Institute is a private, grant-making foundation funded by George Soros which aims to shape public policy to promote democratic governance, human rights, and economic, legal, and social reform.
